Iconic Fabric Prints

The crackled surface of melt pools on an Antarctic glacier; intricate, abstract layers of siltstone along a rocky Otago coastline; shoot-green bursts of life after a winter deluge in the Outback - these are the evocative images that iconic New Zealand designer David Trubridge held close when designing a new collection of fabric prints for local textile company, Hemptech. The design is contemporary and cultural, smart yet casual, sophisticated but down-to-earth. Printed on the finest linen that is sustainably grown and biodegradable, it is luxury with a true lightness of being.
